

SCIENCE-Y DECORATING FINDS

It was good work and good luck that led medical art coordinator Mary Ellen Thomas to unearth the busted bone in "Bone Strength," pp. 114-119. It all started when she happened by NYC's Maxilla & Mandible, Ltd., a freaky/fun-looking store brimming with bones. That's why, when put on a recent Self bone hunt, she knew just where to go. The store had exactly what we needed, plus all sorts of oddball extras—pelts, claws, tusks and skulls (like the Elks-lodge look-alike above). It's perfect for science-y types as well as those on the prowl for fun decorating finds. Wander by or phone 212-724-6173 for a catalog (mention this article to get one free). Or, to tap into another medical-art mainstay, the giant Biology Catalog, send $10.95 to Carolina Biological Supply Co., Box 187, Burlington, NC 27215.